

Hey Guys!

Santa has sent me here to help you and help him. My job is to report back to Santa on how you are doing this year. We all know that right before Christmas things can get crazy but I am here to help. You can tell me things on your wish list and I will report them back to Santa. I also report back to Santa when you have been good and when you have been well let's say not so good. (We always want to do our best to be good). This time before Christmas is so much fun for me, I come in the morning (and sometimes I bring mischief and sometimes treat and sometimes I just hide) and then at night I fly to Santa and give him my report. It is my job and I love it!

While I am here you have to remember you can not touch me, when you touch me I lose my magic powers and I can not fly back to Santa that night. But if you do accidentally touch me, lay me on the floor and dance around singing jingle bells and that tends to help get my powers back.

I am excited to be your new friend this year and have a TON of holiday fun! But remember you also do not want to tell your friends at school about me, because there is a waitlist and not everyone has their own special elf just yet and we don't want to make our friends at school sad for those who are still on the waitlist with Santa.

I do need one BIG thing from you, I need you to give me a name, it can be whatever name you choose but that is the job Santa says you have to do! So give me a name and let's get our holiday fun started!

Love your elf
